1

Jesus told this story: "A farmer had two sons. They all lived and worked on the family farm. Someday, when the father died, the sons would share all the money he had made.

2

"I will go home and be my father's servant," he said. "My father gives his workers good food." The father was always watching for his son to come back and he ran to meet him.

He had to work looking after pigs.
It was a dirty, smelly job. He was so hungry that he wanted to eat the pig's food.
The boy thought about his father and was sad.

One day the youngest one said,
"Father give me the money I will inherit when you die. I want to see the world and have a good time, now."

The father gave the youngest son his share of the inheritance money, praying that his son would spend it wisely and live a good life.

4

The boy had fun spending lots of money on big parties and presents for his friends. Soon all the money was gone. He didn't even have a house to live in.
